Do Christians Misunderstand The "Fact" of Evolution?

The following article is taken from a "letter to the Editor" written by Dr. Robert Hughes, Professor of Science, in reply to an article appearing in the Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette newspaper. The article dealt with a report on a meeting of biologists.

From Chicago via The New York Times to the Fort Wayne Journal Gazette, November 10, 1980 - could something have been lost in all that travel? The headline read, "Darwin's Challengers No Longer Confined to Fundamentalists." Really? No, not really.

All that The New York Times News Service reported on was a little intramural fuss among evolutionists trying to get their act together. The article related that, "Exactly how evolution happened is now a matter of great controversy among biologists." The controversy by the 150 scientists specializing in evolutionary studies in their meeting in Chicago was, as the article put it, "still in house." Apparently they didn't get very far toward a solution, for the article concludes that "no clear resolution of the controversies was in sight."

The "Fact" of Evolution

The author of the newspaper article was quick to point out, however, that, "This fact has often been exploited by religious fundamentalists who misunderstood it to suggest weakness in the fact of evolution rather than the perceived mechanism." He continues, "Actually, it reflects significant progress toward a much deeper understanding of Earth." We are told to take heart. The question is not the "fact" of evolution — that article of faith is not doubted. So don't all of you "religious fundamentalists" (who do you suppose are meant by this term — could it be the creationists?) try to read into this indecision any sign of weakness in the "fact" of evolution.

Now, that makes it hard for an outsider. They have their guard up. But why should such a defensive measure be necessary? Surely this cream of the evolutionary crop are looking for the truth. They are modern scientists of the highest order. Perhaps the reporter is being protective.

Now, no one would conclude that these scientists are not devoted to their faith. That's beyond any doubt. But whether that faith has any foundation is another question. That's what makes the article so interesting.

Macroevolution

Though intramural in concern, these scientists were apparently discussing the level of evolution that is crucial to the evolutionist creationist controversy — macroevolution. This is the aspect of evolution "by which birds and mammals evolved out of reptiles." However, from within this intramural controversy some startling statements were made.

For instance, "The pattern that we were told to find for the last 120 years does not exist," declared Niles Eldridge, a paleontologist from the American Museum of Natural History. The report continues with more from Eldridge, "Species simply appear at a given point in time, persist largely unchanged for a few million years and then disappear. There are very few examples — some say none — of one species shading into another." Did you notice who is quoted here? If anyone in the country had access to a fossil collection that should contain those expected transition forms it should be Niles Eldridge.

Where Have All the Fossils Gone?

In another instance, we are told that "The popularly-told example of horse evolution, suggesting gradual sequences of changes from four-toed, fox-sized creatures to today's much larger one-toed horse, has long been known to be wrong. Instead of gradual change, fossils of each intermediate species appear fully distinct. Transitional forms are unknown." (I wonder how many school children in Indiana have been informed of that error.)

Now don't jump too far with this one. What is recognized to be wrong is the presentation that suggests gradual sequences of changes, not the fact of evolution.

The third interesting argument reported in this article was made by Thomas J.M. Schopf of the University of Chicago. He, too, has a lot of fossil material available in the museums of the Chicago area. Arguing for "the gradualist view," in the face of the lack of transition forms among fossils, he argued that "the soft parts, which are not fossilized, may be undergoing significant gradual changes." Now that is about as near to an "argument from silence" as one can find. Thomas J.M. Schopf surely deserves an award for service beyond the call of duty for that one. That is dogged determination in the face of insuperable odds.

A Fruit Fly is A Fruit Fly

Also, the recognition that after the "40 years of manipulating the evolution of fruit flies, which spawn generations in days . . . fruit flies always remain fruit flies" should not be overlooked. But 40 years, of course, is such a short time we can't expect much evolutionary evidence.

So, it is in light of such facts as these that Eldridge and Gould now argue for "punctuated equilibrium" — "new species arise not from gradual changes but in sudden bursts of evolution . . . species remain largely stable for long periods and then suddenly change dramatically. The transition happens so fast, they suggest, that the chance of intermediate forms being fossilized and found is nil." So Eldridge and Gould join Schopf and the geneticists, punctuated equilibriumists, and gradualists, in their unwavering devotion to the fact of evolution even while admitting that no evidence for macroevolution is presently available. That kind of devotion is much more than the "religious fundamentalists" ask of their disciples. At least they have the claims of the Scriptures that the Creator sets bounds so that plants, animals, and men will reproduce after their kind. The fossils fit that plan quite well.

Who Has The Shoe?

There was a day when it was said that science was a corrective to religious superstition. Science insisted upon hard evidence to support its conclusions. Maybe that day has passed. The shoe may be on the other foot. "Scientists" hold to their view even against the evidence while the "creationist," excluded from the class of "scientist," cites the cold, hard facts admitted by the "scientist" as evidence for his view. (Incidentally, "that every organism is governed by the same genetic code controlling the same biochemical processes" could be a display of the genius of a very wise Creator just as well as it could be a pointer to common ancestry. Remember, each genetic code is quite specific for its own species.)

Mr. Editor, you publish some of the most interesting articles.

Dedicated To A Life of Service

Featured Alumni: The Rupp Family

Howard Dunlap, Director of Church/Alumni Relations, and Ken and Ruth Rupp look through the FWBC Alumni Directory during a recent visit to the Bible College.

Taking a look at the history of missionary work in Sierra Leone, one cannot avoid coming across the name "Rupp." Over-viewing the FWBC missions program, the name "Rupp" is sure to appear. Since 1907 the Rupp family has been extensively involved in missionary work in Africa. Our featured alumni, Kenneth and Ruth Rupp, are no exception.

Born in Sierra Leone to missionaries Rev. & Mrs. David Rupp, Sr., Kenneth has been involved in missionary service for almost his entire life. He has lived in Africa for 44 years — that is twice as long as he has spent in the United States. Ruth, also a M.K., spent her childhood in the Congo (now Zaire) where her parents were stationed.

Ken and his younger brother Dave both felt the leading of the Lord to follow in their father's footsteps. Ken received his education both on the mission field and in the United States. He finished high school in Columbia, South Carolina, while staying at the Westervelt home — a home for male M.K.s. From there he studied at Columbia Bible School and then to Fort Wayne Bible College to finish his degree in 1937.

"I Learned to Study the Word"

Like so many alumni, Kenneth relates how his time at FWBC helped him in his Christian service. "At the Bible College I learned to really study the Word. My professors were great teachers of the Bible. This helped me on the mission field as I served the Lord and as I instructed others."

Ken and Ruth began their service together in 1944, but not before a very long and interesting courtship. While returning to the Westervelt home (turned co-ed) for a visit, Ken was introduced to Ruth, which began a seven year courtship. Ken returned with his parents and brother to Africa, while Ruth stayed in the United States. During this time Ruth attended the Bible College for one year to become more familiar with the Missionary Church. For seven years Ken and Ruth corresponded by mail. Ken even proposed to Ruth by letter! Finally he was able to return to the U.S. and they were married on November 25, 1944. After the birth of their first son (they have four children), they returned to Sierra Leone — this time together.

Ken relates that he has been involved in "a little bit of everything" while on the field. He has taken part in church evangelism, church planting and teaching. One of his highlights was in helping with the translation of the Gospel of John into the Themne language. He also served as Field Chairman or Assistant Chairman for many years. Ruth developed and lead classes for the women.

A New Life For All

While on the mission field Ken and Ruth sent their children to the Kabala Rupp Memorial School located in Sierra Leone. The school was founded in memory of Ken's parents. "Mom had a tremendous concern for education and did what she could to teach the children," shares Ken. The Kabala Rupp Memorial School has been in existence since 1956 for the purpose of educating missionary children on the field. At one time 11 children with the last name of Rupp were attending the school.

Although great revivals aren't experienced a lot in Sierra Leone, there have been a number of decisions for Christ. "It was discouraging at times. The same enemy who opposed the missionaries before the turn of the century is the one we wrestle against today. It is always refreshing and uplifting to know that there is a new life for all," comments Ken.

With a combined total of 73 years in missionary work, Ken and Ruth returned to the U.S. in 1978 and retired from the field in 1979. Ken still helps at the Missionary Headquarters in Fort Wayne by packing barrels and boxing up books. He also directs in the purchasing of needed products for the mission field. Ruth keeps busy at home and with their four grandchildren.

Yes, Kenneth and Ruth are retired from the field, but the impact they have had in Sierra Leone and their continual prayers will be felt for many years.

News in The Brief

BOWLATHON '81

The Fort Wayne Bible College Student Association raised over $5,000 during BOWLATHON '81 on Friday, January 23. All funds were given to the College. Over 60 students, staff and faculty participated in the BOWLATHON held at Village Bowl on Bluffton Road in Fort Wayne. Participants were allowed to bowl free of charge Friday morning and afternoon. Participants sought sponsor support from relatives, friends, members of their local and home churches and communities. Sponsors were asked to pledge an amount of their choice per bowling pin knocked down in each game.

MICROCOMPUTER DONATED

Recently a microcomputer was donated to Fort Wayne Bible College for the primary purpose of course instruction being developed in 1981. It is the goal of the college, through the computer, to prepare the student to use computer techniques in his or her Christian service or career. God has once again opened a door to a new area of study at the Bible College.

THREE FACULTY MEMBERS ON ACCREDITING TEAMS

Three FWBC faculty/staff members have been and will be involved in different accrediting teams sent out by the American Association of Bible Colleges. Cyril Eicher, former Director of Correspondence Studies, was on the accrediting team at Luther Rice Bible College, Jacksonville, Florida. Don Postel, Director of Business Affairs, was involved in the evaluation of Clear Creek Baptist College at Pineville, Kentucky. Dr. Gene Hovee, Vice-President, will take part in the evaluation of Mid-South Bible College in Memphis, Tennessee.

FACULTY MEMBER RESIGNS

Joseph Snider, Assistant Professor of Christian Education, has submitted his resignation from the FWBC faculty, effective June 5, 1981. He has accepted the position of Associate Pastor at the First Missionary Church in Fort Wayne. His key emphasis will be on Educational Ministries. Mr. Snider joined the FWBC faculty in 1974.

President's Perspective

You have been on my mind lately — alumni and friends. It is a truism that the character of a school is established by its alumni. And friends who have a special interest in a school can make the dreams of its leaders come true.

These months have been occasion for me to get acquainted in depth with the many interwoven elements that taken together form what we know as Fort Wayne Bible College. At the same time I am learning I find myself having dreams about the future of this school and its people.

I am optimistic. The strength and quality that are currently characteristic of this school can and must be expanded upon. Our programs need to be sharpened and made more effective. The spiritual growth of students, faculty, and staff needs to be more consistent and vibrant. Our contribution to His church needs to be improved in scope and quality. Our faculty need to be provided with stimuli for opportunity for continuous professional growth and ministry. Our library is good but needs to be strengthened. A computer would help us be better stewards of time and resources.

Certain items of equipment would be of invaluable assistance to our great Physical Plant team. And wouldn't it be great to have a new multi-purpose building to house our chapel, gym, student activities, and cafeteria?

But enough of dreams for the moment. I have been thinking of you alumni as I seek to measure the stature of this school. And what I see is of great encouragement to me. And for you who fit the category of friends — to a large degree it is through your prayers and financial support that what we have today has been made possible.

I am convinced that you, your love, and concern will have much to do with our future. I invite all of you to dream with me.

Daily Walk Ministry in 2nd Year

THE DAILY WALK, a Bible-reading daily devotional ministry of FWBC is now in its second year of operation and going strong. The ministry has already touched thousands of lives and made new friends for the college according to the "DW" coordinator, Char Vincent. "Hardly a day goes by that I don't get a letter from a reader commenting on how THE DAILY WALK has affected their life," she said.

Mrs. Vincent said the college currently is offering special group rates for churches and organizations and encourages pastors or church leaders to contact her if interested. Computer Aids In FWBC Music Program

Computer-mania has swept the nation! Wherever one turns there seems to be some version of the "electric brain" nearby. The electronic device seems never to run out of functions to make life a little bit easier. One such function is in education.

Approximately thirty-five music students made use of Fort Wayne Bible College's new addition, the APPLE II microcomputer, during the fall term, and at least that many students are using the computer during this semester.

The APPLE II was donated to the College by Jay Platte, Chairman of the Department of Music, and his wife, Shirley, part-time music instructor.

An Expanding Outlet

"We donated the APPLE II mainly as an instructional tool for the students," states Mr. Platte. "APPLE II has numerous uses, but our intentions are instructional. Our goal is to provide an expanding outlet for the transmission of ideas (the teaching process)."

Music classes the APPLE II has been used to include: Music Theory, Advanced Music Theory, Composition, and Music Seminar. Currently there is exploration in new ideas for the computer's use. It is hoped that it can be implemented in English, Conducting, and Arranging. Possibly it can also be put to use in data management and record-keeping for the College, but its main use will remain for instructional purposes.

Some of the functions that the APPLE II can perform are: receiving, playing and displaying music up to four voices; playing a melodic sequence and then asking the student to enter the melody on the monitor; drilling on all types of intervals; and analyzing types and qualities of chords. This may sound complicated, but it makes a lot of sense to the music student.

The student is able to work questions that are listed in his or her Benward music theory text on the computer instead of turning them into the instructor. The computer has the ability to relay to the student if the question is answered correctly. If the answer is incorrect, the student goes back and reviews the material.

Review and Pacing

The APPLE II microcomputer assists in instruction by reinforcement and pacing. After a student has used a concept numerous times, he is more apt to remember the ideas for future use. The student is also able to progress at his own rate of speed.

Sandy McCarthy is one of the over thirty-five students who have put to use the APPLE II microcomputer in music instruction at FWBC.

This is a real asset to a student since during classroom instruction there is not always time to review or explain a concept adequately.

Mr. Platte explains, "The strengths of computers in education center around individualization and reinforcement. While having the ability to strengthen the instructional input to the learner, the computer does not have the capacity to replace the teacher-student relationship." Classroom teaching is still vital in the learning process at Fort Wayne Bible College.

What has the students' response been? For the most part the response has been positive. Sophomore Sandy McCarthy comments, "The computer makes homework more interesting to do. I've learned a lot!"

Most students, along with Jay Platte, feel that the transition of using the computer in homework study and instructional purposes went very smoothly. The students are excited about the new concept in learning.

The APPLE II has opened a new door in learning and instruction to FWBC. Mr. Platte sums up the computer assisted program by saying, "Computers can't do everything, but they are sometimes more efficient. I believe we will see a greater understanding of musical elements and vocabulary in our music students. This is only the beginning."

SMF Holds President For Ransom

"Kidnappers" stormed into Chapel on Spiritual Emphasis Day, February 12, spirited away our president, Dr. Bostrom, and then demanded ransom for his release. FWBC students came to the rescue with more than $1,100 in "ransom" money which went to the Student Missionary Fellowship's missionary project.

We are experiencing a great year here at the Bible College. Enthusiasm is high and the overall morale is optimistic. I don't mean to say that we do not need your prayers — we do have needs.

From The Director

The Christian Service Department feels good about the teams who are out representing the Lord and FWBC in many churches. The Chorale is giving superb performances and will be ministering to us at the Alumni Banquet program on May 8. Also two young men from HIS Company will be giving a dramalogue entitled "He's Alive." The program will begin at 8 p.m. in Founders Auditorium after the Banquet which will be held in the Fellowship Hall of First Missionary Church and in the cafeteria in Founders Hall at 6:30 p.m.

May 8 promises to be a great day. Classes that I know of who are planning special activities are 1931, 1941, and 1946. Your class can also plan something! Let us know and we will do all we can to coordinate your gathering.

As of now we are behind in Alumni giving as compared to last year, and would like to reach our goal of $176,000. We do need your help.

We have had Pastors' Breakfasts to acquaint the pastors with Dr. Bostrom. Dr. Bostrom will be going west in May to visit the Phoenix, Arizona, California, and Hawaiian churches. We will have alumni and friends meetings in these areas. The dates and times are in Dr. Bostrom's schedule.

Spring Musical To Be Presented

Fort Wayne Bible College's 1981 Spring Musical will be the presentation of "The Martyrs' Mirror." The musical drama will be presented at 8:00 p.m. on the evenings of April 30, May 1 and 2, in Founders Auditorium on the campus of FWBC.

The musical is based on historical accounts of the Anabaptists during the Reformation as portrayed in the book, "The Martyrs' Mirror." The drama focuses on the lives of two married couples who are persecuted for their belief in the Christian faith, but stand firm in their beliefs despite the consequences.

The musical drama is under the direction of Mr. Jay Platte, Chairman of Department of Music, and Miss Sonja Strahm, Assistant Professor of English, Art, and Christian Drama.

For ticket information, contact the FWBC Music Department, 1025 W. Rudisill Blvd., Fort Wayne, Indiana, 46807.

Dr. Clyde Taylor

The missions program at FWBC reached another milestone recently when it was announced that a chair of Overseas Mission had been established at the college by Dr. Clyde W. Taylor. Dr. Taylor, member of the governing board for the past 27 years and national secretary of the World Evangelical Fellowship, has endowed the Chair with a gift of $25,000.

The money will be used to establish a lectureship series in missions and to bring to campus outstanding missions personnel for consultation with students. The first lectureship series occurred on March 26-27, when Dr. Vergil Gerber, executive director of the Evangelical Missions Information Service, spent two days on campus and in addition, spoke before a banquet attended by pastors, senior missions majors, and selected staff and faculty members. Dr. Gerber is noted for his innovative new methods in missionary evangelism.

Dr. Taylor, here for a governing board meeting, also participated in the two-day series which included an interview on WBCL's Mid-Morning Program with Char Binkley.

Heading up planning for the Missions Chair program is Daryl Cartmel, chairman of the Missions Department at the college.

BC's Rychener Named All-American

Cal Rychener, a four-year starter for the Falcon basketball team has been selected for All-American honors by the National Christian College Athletic Association. The senior co-captain of this year's 4-17 team scored a game average of 20.3 points from his forward position and averaged more than 17 points a game during his four-year career with Steve Morley's quintet. He is the second All-American player ever from FWBC. Todd Habegger was selected for this honor in 1976.

A pastoral ministries major, Cal was as outstanding off the court as he was on it, having made the Dean's List every semester and a listing in "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities." He also served as junior class president. According to Coach Morley, Cal "is one of the most spiritually sensitive young men I have coached. He is very desirous of exalting Christ in his life. He is highly respected on campus by both the student body and the faculty."
